Navigating Technology in Today's World

In our world today, we are crammed with all kinds of technology. Every family has at least one of the following types of technology in their homes: computer, laptop, iPhone, tablet, television, etc. These types of technology can and have made our lives easier. They were created to serve our needs and help provide us with tools that could save us time. There have been many studies about the effects of technology on our physical, social, and mental health. Let's discover the positive and negative effects of technology on different aspects of our lives:

- Social skills
- Spiritual effects
- Security
- Psychological effects
- Physical effects
